

1. You will save yourself the cost of a professional search if you find your invention on your own.
2. You will learn about similar inventions that have been patented in the past.
3. Doing your own patent search will help you refine and improve your invention.
4. You may not find a similar invention, at which time a professional, international search is highly recommended.
5. You can give a professional search company valuable supplemental information about your invention that you found during your search. Any information you can supply to a search company helps them provide you with a better search.

IMPORTANT DISCLAIMER: Please note that even if you chose our Comprehensive Search product offering (as opposed to one or more of our more limited product offerings), the search we conduct will be a "patent and product search" solely. This means it does not include an evaluation of prior art and how it relates to your ability to get a patent.

However, if you desire professional help in evaluating your search results, we can provide you with this service for an additional fee. Please write to us at admin@searchquestpatents.com to have someone contact you in order to arrange to have one of our IP professionals provide such assistance.

 Patents cost thousands or ten's of thousands of dollars. A SeachQuest patent search will provide valuable information to you and your patent attorney or agent when filing your patent application. A typical, simple mechanical type product search is $499. More complex electrical, software, or biological searches may cost more and will be quoted on a case-by-case basis.
